Open House Warning From a SCAOR Member

Last weekend, an agent was holding an open house and around 4 o'clock a black van pulled up and five people got out (2 adults and 3 older children).

They all put backpacks on and entered the house. As soon as they entered, they all split up and started scouring through the house. The agent was trying to keep track of them and found them going through closets, medicine cabinets, drawers, etc. Luckily there was very little in the house, but he said it seemed as though they were looking for anything of value. He was very unsettled by this and did not feel comfortable with them in the house.

Please keep a lookout and take the right precautions to be safe.
